PART 4 - LISTENING

Listen to the speaker discussing the evolution of education. Analyze the main points and the speaker's advice to find the correct answers.

Audio Script

"The world is changing, and being a student today involves more than just sitting in a classroom. To succeed, you first need digital literacy. The internet is full of information, but not all of it is true. You must develop a 'critical eye' to filter facts from myths.

Secondly, never ignore soft skills. We often focus only on grades, but leadership and emotional intelligence are what actually help you in the real world. It's about how you communicate and work with others.

Finally, adopt a growth mindset. Don't get frustrated if a task is difficult; instead of saying 'I can't,' say 'I can't yet.' If you break your big goals into small, realistic steps, you will stay motivated. Remember: consistency is the key to progress."

1. What is the speaker's advice regarding the internet?

- (A) Avoid using it for academic research.
- (B) Believe everything you read on social media.
- (C) Use a "critical eye" to verify information.
- (D) Only use it for communication with friends.
- (E) It is less important than traditional books.

2. Why does the speaker mention "soft skills"?

- (A) Because they are more important than passing exams.
- (B) Because they help you interact and succeed in real life.
- (C) Because they are only necessary for professional leaders.

- (D) Because they make school subjects much easier.
- (E) Because they are not related to emotional intelligence.

3. What is the purpose of saying "I can't yet"?

- (A) To accept that some things are impossible to learn.
- (B) To show that you are not interested in the task.
- (C) To indicate that you need more time to finish.
- (D) To maintain a positive and growing perspective.
- (E) To apologize for not being smart enough.

Task: Navigating the "Fast Fashion" Crisis

Instructions: Your school's International Studies department is hosting a forum on "Ethical Consumption." They are looking for student essays to be published in a digital journal regarding the rise of Fast Fashion (cheap, disposable clothing).

Write an argumentative essay (160-180 words) discussing the impact of this industry. In your writing, you must:

- Analyze the phenomenon: Discuss why fast fashion has gained such "popularity" among teenagers and identify one negative consequence for the environment.
- Argue for change: Propose how a shift toward "durability" and quality over quantity can change consumer behavior. (Use the correct noun forms of these words).
- Evaluate the "significance" of ethics: Explain why the "improvement" of working conditions in factories should be a priority for global brands.
- Structure & Tone: Use a formal academic style. Include advanced connectors (e.g., nevertheless, in light of, despite this) and ensure your arguments are logically organized.

PART 6 - SPEAKING

THE URBAN EVOLUTION INTERVIEW

1. To practice your speaking: Examine the picture above carefully. Prepare a short speech where you describe the scene in detail and answer some of the following questions: What elements in this picture suggest innovation or environmental awareness? What kind of 'intention' did the designers have for this city? Do you think most people will happily look forward to a lifestyle where sustainable technology changes their daily routine? To achieve this kind of city, what actions must local governments carry out right now? Is it difficult for older generations to keep up with these modern urban concepts? Why?
